Yehuda takes photos in the airport in Israel. Who is the airport named after?

Look for a picture of Yehuda in the forest. Which organization planted this forest and Yehuda went on a tour of Mount Herzl in Jerusalem, where many great Israeli people are buried. He took a photo of himself next to a sign that displays the name of the person responsible for bringing Herzl's bones to be buried in Israel. This person is known as "The Father of the Forests" due to the huge amount of forest planting that he did in Israel.

Who is this person?

Yehuda took a picture of himself with an ID card next to a person who forged ID cards during the Holocaust in order to save Jews. Who was this person, and in which city in Israel did this happen?

Later in Yehuda's tour of Mount Herzl, he visited the grave of a person who endangered herself to help the Jewish people and was executed for doing so. What was her name?

Yehuda goes to Jerusalem in the footsteps of a person who revived the Jewish language and takes a photo with this man's house in the background. Who was the man?

The man who forged ID cards is also an artist. What is the name of the big picture gallery in Tel Aviv?

The attached text was found in the clothes of a woman who wrote a diary. Look at the pictures and figure out: who was the woman?

On the way to Jerusalem, Yehuda stops in a place named after heroes who saved the Jewish people during the Second Temple. Ben-Yehuda is the one who revived the connection to them, was accused of rebellion, and was placed in a Turkish prison for his saying that he hoped that a "Judah the Maccabean" would arise in his generation. Who are the characters, and what is the name of the place?
